

3rd Doctoral Meeting of the European School of Protohistory of Bibracte (France)

March, 27th and 28th

Call for papers

The third Doctoral Meeting of the European School of Protohistory of Bibracte (Burgundy, France) – EEPB – will stand on March 2017, the 27th and 28th.

This Meeting aims to bring together European PhD and Post-PhD students working on the European Protohistory.

These last two years, the Doctoral Meetings gathered the studies of researchers working on interdisciplinary topics, in different geographical and cultural contexts during the Iron Age. In 2017, the Bronze Age will be integrated in discussions. This edition is dedicated to the memory of Colin Burgess, Professor at the University of Newcastle, whose wife has generously donated the library to Bibracte in 2016.

Those two days shall be an opportunity to promote discussions among these people around a common theme:

“Interactions and exchanges during the Protohistory”

This is voluntary a very large theme. Links analysis, relations and contacts between protohistoric societies can be showed through different aspects: economic, political, social, ethnic or cultural.

The methodological approaches highlighting these links are welcome. However, these meetings aim to promote innovative and multidisciplinary approaches (archaeometry, statistics, and data processing systems). The systematic use of these new tools allows a normalization of the data and global reflections concerning long periods and large areas.

Finally, through this theme, dearly missed by Burgess, the PhD students and Post-PhD will be invited to discuss on the different contributions and the difficulties raised by these new methods as part of their thesis. These meetings will also be an opportunity to wonder about the trends and the possible deficiencies of the recent European researches during the Protohistory.

General informations

Location

This doctoral meeting will take place in the European archaeological center of Bibracte, Glux-en Glenne (Nièvre- FRANCE) the 27th and 28th of March, 2017.

Reception and accommodation

During these meetings, the food and accommodation will be supported by the organizer on the whole week of the meeting (March 26 to 31). A reception will be take place on Sunday, the 26th. It will also be possible to stay at Bibracte after these doctoral meeting to take advantage of the library (arrange directly with the administration of the European Centre of Archaeology of Bibracte).

The travel expenses will be support by the participants.

Call for papers/posters

The number of participants is limited by the capacity of the Centre archéologique. Doctoral and post-doctoral student graduated for less than 3 years who wish to present a paper or poster will be prioritized. Other requests to participate shall reviewed on a case by case basis. The organizing committee keep the right to propose the realization of a posters or to group communications.

The duration of a communication is limited to 20 minutes, followed by 10 minutes of discussion.

To facilitate the exchanges, the communication/poster will be in French or in English. It would be preferable that slideshows are in different language than the communication (For instance communication in French = slideshows in English). The people wishing to present a communication or a poster are invited to complete the attached form and to send back it before November 14th, 2016 to the address:

rencontres.doctorales.adf@gmail.com.

Publication/Diffusion

The communications and the posters will be published after validation by the scientific committee of doctoral meetings.

Scientific Committee

Anne-Marie Adam, professeur émérite à l'université de Strasbourg
Philippe Barral, professeur à l'université de Bourgogne Franche-Comté
Stephan Fichtl, professeur à l'université de Strasbourg
Vincent Guichard, directeur général de Bibracte
Claude Mordant, professeur émérite à l'université de Bourgogne
Stefan Wirth, professeur à l'université de Bourgogne Franche-Comté

Organizing Committee

Thibault Le Cozanet (doctorant, université de Bourgogne Franche-Comté, UMR ArTeHiS 6298) ; Cécile Moulin (doctorante, École normale supérieure de Lyon, UMR HiSoMA 5189) ; Marilou Nordez (doctorante, université de Toulouse, UMR TRACES 5608).

Registration Form

You can arrive in Bibracte on Sunday, 26th of March and leave on Friday, 31th. Food and accommodation will be supported by Bibracte during the whole week (but not the travel).

If you have any questions about this, you can contact :

Accueil Recherche, Bibracte, Centre archéologique européen – F-58370 Glux-en-Glenne

Tél. 33 (0)3 86 78 69 00 – fax 33 (0)3 86 78 65 70 – courriel : accueil@bibracte.fr

Please, note to send back this form before the 14th of November 2016 at this address:

rencontres.doctorales.adf@gmail.com.

Name :

First name :

Address :
.....

E-Mail :

Phone Number :

Establishment of affiliation or laboratory :
.....

Date of Arrival :

Date of departure :

I wish to propose :

- a poster
- a communication

Title :
.....
.....
.....

Abstract (300 worlds):

